Tracer Study of SEIP Training Graduates

The Skills for Employment Investment Program (SEIP), supported by the Asian Development Bank (ADB), plans to assess effectiveness of the SEIP training programs which aims to improve the employability of the training graduates. This requires collecting the information from the actual SEIP training graduates to understand their current employment status and relevance of their training programs and to receive feedback on the SEIP training programs. With this backdrop, it is officially decided that a graduate tracking survey (i.e., tracer study) will be conducted, and the Development Project Design & Services Ltd (DPDS) has been engaged to undertake this tracer study. The findings of the tracer study will be used to improve the SEIP training programs and its policy for prospective students.

The data collection of the survey is conducted from August to November, 2018. The randomly selected SEIP training graduates, who completed the training course between January 1st 2016, and December 31st, 2017, will receive the phone calls to set up face-to-face interview.

If you are randomly selected, please take time to participate in this survey. This is an official survey, and your feedbacks are very important for us to improve the SEIP training programs and its policy. All the personal information collected through the survey will remain confidential, and they will not be disclosed to outside. The survey results will be aggregated, and anonymity of the individual responses will be strictly ensured. However, should you require any clarification on this tracer study, please contact the following number at DPDS.
